Good morning,

Thank-you for the information which you have shared regarding Jayne's Baby Bank and bringing this matter to our attention. We can confirm that the organisation is not currently registered with us.

The following is required for a non-charity organisation (i.e. not registered with the Charity Commission) to register with the Fundraising Regulator:

- Be registered with Companies House;
- Have operated in the UK fundraising environment for at least 12 months, before we consider registration;
- Be able to provide us with a set of internal accounts at the point of application;
- Have an established and published complaints policy on your website. The following guidance note may be useful;
- Commit to abide by The Code of Fundraising Practice and our T&C;
- Be able to demonstrate compliance with the standards in the Code;
- Be able to explain why the company has not registered as a charity;
- Be able to outline the charitable aspect and purpose of your fundraising at the point of application.

You can also find more information on our registration pages.

As previously outlined the activities of Jayne's Baby Bank fall outside of our remit and there is no further action for us to take at this time. However, any future application to register which is made by the organisation will be reviewed according to the requirements above prior to approval.

Kind regards

Steph
